01 Strong Content

Combinations of colors that have strong tonal contrast are generally most effective. For example, black on yellow reads better on an LED than pink on red.

Best Practices – LED Content

Making Content for Large Format LED

When creating content for large format LED displays, it is important the designer considers physical scale of the screen.

Contrast, fine detail, color, and footage speed will not appear exactly the same on a large LED display as it does on the LCD monitor used to create it.

02 Copy Size

If using copy, consider the scale, height, and distance of the display in physical space to ensure a legible type size. In most cases a sans serif typeface is recommended to avoid visual "noise", especially on displays with a higher pixel pitch.

File Naming

Please use this content nomenclature to ensure correct scheduling of the proper content.

Campaign

Name that describes the creative campaign

03 Brightness

Content with large areas of full white is overwhelming on large displays. Reducing brightness by 5-10% on pure white layers when designing is often desirable.
